BLOG HIGHLIGHT-PLAY!

By: Hallie Respondek, M.Ed., BCBA, LBA

Play is the driving force behind social development . Autism often impacts a child's ability to play so it's often needing to be taught.

At Blossom, play is our teaching foundation and one of the ways we ensure our kiddos use play to fill social deficit gaps and decrease interfering behaviors.

BCBA highlight

I live for giggles and laughs from kids. Whether it is my own kids, kids I've worked with over the years, laughter is the sign of success to me. If you can make them laugh, you are doing something right!
